Attention Debit Card Holders... We May Be Calling You

To protect your account, special software monitors your ATM and debit card transactions for potentially fraudulent activity. If fraudulent ATM or debit card use is suspected, you will receive a call to validate the legitimacy of your transactions. Your participation in responding to our call is critical to prevent potential monetary losses and avoid restrictions which may be placed on your card until the unusual activity is verified. Our goal, quite simply, is to manage our risk exposure required by regulations, with the service you expect and deserve.

To ensure we can continue to reach you timely whenever fraud is suspected, the next time you conduct business with the CU, please take a minute to confirm your contact information with us, including:

- * Primary phone numbers (i.e. home, work, and cell)
- * Address

As a reminder, potential fraud through ID theft is now the world in which we live. Please be diligent in monitoring transaction activity on your account and contact us immediately if you identify any unauthorized transactions. Also, when traveling out of the country, make sure you contact us prior to your trip if you plan to use your debit card overseas.

A Home Equity Loan Can Be Your Lifeline
